“I collect those quiet stories, lifting them from the shadows and weaving them into a communal tapestry.” – Story Weaver

Trinity Players, a theatre outreach legacy launched by the late Rev. H. Clayton Moyer, TUCC, now led by Artistic Director, Deb Hollen, is committed to empower regional artists by providing space and support to create an original work via the direction of Kathleen Davison, Painted

Saint Entertainment. 20 artists from the tri-state region were awarded participation scholarship, courtesy of PSE, to engage in a twelve-week workshop series led by Davison. Participants studied the principles of acting, the fundamentals of theatre business and production, and the creative process of collaborative writing that culminated in the original play,

TELL... surviving in shadows of secrets.

The show reveals its themes through a series of vignettes in which an ensemble of freshly cast actors artistically interpret the shared humanity that intersected in a small rural Boro, where courage was summoned by writers to share what is seldom spoken: vulnerable traumas and how they survived them.
